Earth Science for a Better World

April 7th, 2017

5pm EDT / 4pm CDT / 3pm MDT / 2pm PDT

Join us online to learn more about the Great American Eclipse and how STEM learning can thrive by creating and caring for a garden.

At the end of the webinar, participants will be able to:
- Identify how to create a garden connected with the environment
- "Grow" your own garden from your region and select (and possibly make) a Recipe for a Region
- Participate in the activities during the webinar.

Presenter: Dr. Alex Young

This 45-minute session will explore our watery world and thrive by creating and caring for a garden. Explore what living things need to survive and recipe that features that ingredient.

Visit our website for more information about the webinar.

Wish you could attend both webinars – or just one! – as it fits your needs and schedule!
